Although it's unclear why anyone would ever hire Lindsay Lohan to do theater, someone did, and now they're paying the expected price.

Lohan, who announced in June that she would star in David Mamet's "Speed-the-Plow" in London, has been blowing off rehearsals and showing up late, sources told Star Magazine.

"The cast is already really annoyed," an insider revealed. "The director told her that, basically, it's a one-strike deal; if she misses one more practice or comes in late again, she's done."

As was previously reported, the troubled 28-year-old has been boozing and drugging like a madman in London, where she can party all night without getting harassed by the paparazzi.

"Lindsay's convinced everyone in America is out to get her, but she's had the opposite experience in London," an insider previously said.

Lohan has been shedding some serious pounds since relocating across the pond, likely from excessive stimulant use. Doctors are now concerned about her health.

"Lindsay Lohan appears to have dropped almost 15 pounds in the past nine months," nutritionist and personal trainer Franci Cohen previously told Radar.

"While this may not seem like a lot of weight to lose, given her petite frame and small size, 15 pounds is possibly 15-20% of her entire body weight!"

Lohan's body image issues go beyond her weight. She also hates her freckles, which she intends to get "bleached or lasered away," a friend said.

"Lindsay is known for trying new things, but she's shocked friends and family members by suddenly getting irate over her freckles," the insider said. "She's always loved her freckles - well, pretended to, anyway - but now she's decided it's time to get rid of them and she's looking into having them either bleached or lasered away."

The source added, "It's bizarre, but it's exactly what happens when Lindsay starts going off the rails again - she wants more surgery or a total makeover because she's so miserable."
